But when will the EU help?

The EU has been making progress on the issue of conflict and violence in the region. However, there are still challenges to overcome, and the EU needs to do more to support peace efforts in the area.

The European Union has been working to promote peace and stability in the region, but there are still many challenges to overcome. The EU needs to do more to support peace efforts in the area, and to provide assistance to those affected by conflict and violence.