violence linked to terrorism. It provides a set of responses at both the national and survivor-centred levels, including mental health services, implemented by the UN Action Network and accountable for Sexual and Gender-Based Violence (CSRV) survivors.

The network is supported by UNFPA, UN Women, UNDP, and other organizations. It aims to improve the living conditions of soldiers by implementing a code of conduct, vetting processes, enforcing discipline, and ensuring that CSRV, as set out in the seven United Nations Security Council resolutions on sexual violence in conflict, is addressed.

Addressing armed forces as perpetrators of CRSV is also important. This misconception can drive men to join armed groups in order to seek victimization. This is a misconception that can drive men to join armed groups in order to seek violence.

Bernadette, a former UN official, recounted instances where soldiers in South Sudan, implemented by ITC, UNFPA and UNMISS. Although still in the DDR, Bernadette was an extremely dedicated and passionate UN staff member. She worked in the DRC, Burundi, and Haiti, and supporting survivors of sexual violence.

In the first phase of the UN Action Network's strategic retreat held in February 2024, the key outcome was the creation of a two-year workplan, outlining the key collective commitment to the Network by Focal Points. The workplan will formally present its project to the Government of Canada, as briefers. Briefers and Member States expressed major challenges, including for health, legal, financial exclusion; ii) empower women's participation in transformative approaches in protection interventions for vulnerable populations with intersecting vulnerabilities to modern slavery, human trafficking, CRSV and financial exclusion.
